Course Description:

This course provides in-depth study of principled leadership as the foundation for ethical governance from a historical perspective. Leaders are examined in different historical and institutional contexts. Students explore tensions between principles and power, and personal responsibility and public accountability.

Learning Outcomes:

This course aims to help students to analyze the criteria for successful leadership and evaluate the basis for ethical leadership in history.

By the end of this course, students should be able to distinguish between different approaches to leadership in history and assess the role of historical context on leadership styles and outcomes.

This course will foster students' ability to read and think critically, to organize and communicate ideas in both written and oral forms, and to conduct historical research.

Textbooks and Course Materials:

All required readings are available on the course website or online through the links provided in the syllabus.
