Course Description:

In this course, we'll dive into the fascinating world of data and statistical reasoning—building from the basics of descriptive statistics and probability all the way to hypothesis testing and simple and multiple linear regression. You won't just learn the formulas; you'll see how these tools come alive through examples hands-on problem-and practical applications in economics. We have a lot of exciting ground to cover, and I'm committed to making our time together both challenging and rewarding, giving you the skills to confidently analyze and interpret data in meaningful ways.
