Course Description:

This course explores how precious objects such as religious relics, ancient artifacts, luxury goods, and commodities have shaped global history. The possession and pursuit of scarce and precious commodities, or objects that confer political power, cultural legitimacy, or sacred meaning, are recurring sources of conflict throughout history. Using a variety of global case studies, students will investigate how diverse cultures have interpreted, competed over, and used objects of desire in religion, diplomacy, trade, war, imperialism, and migration.

Learning Outcomes:

- have a working understanding of the methods of material cultural analysis and be able to apply theory to a wide range of historical topics.
- understand how the competition over commodities and precious objects has shaped global history.
- appreciate the various ways cultures embody the sacred in objects.
- understand how objects and conspicuous consumption can confer power, prestige, and authority.
- appreciate the trauma of losing precious national, cultural, or religious artifacts.
- develop sensitivity and respect for different cultural understandings of objects.
- refine their ability to analyze primary source texts, images, and artifacts.
- refine their research skills and solve research problems to determine the essential components of the argument, organize the parts of their essay, and draw conclusions.
