Course Description:

An introductory survey of the methods and findings of modern scientific psychology. The following topics will be covered: history and methodology, biological psychology, sensation and perception, learning and motivation, verbal and cognitive processes, developmental psychology, social psychology, individual differences (intelligence and personality), and clinical psychology.

Learning Outcomes:

- Compare and contrast different theoretical approaches to the study of psychology
- Understand psychology as a science, including research design and methodology used to approach the study of psychology
- Recognize the different structures of the central and peripheral nervous system and their functions
- Understand how language, motivation, and cognition influence behaviour; and the processes involved in human and animal learning
- Discover how we develop as individual human beings, with unique capacities and differences in a social context
- Recognize various psychological disorders, their causes and various treatment approaches
- Students will also have an opportunity, via voluntary participation, to have an active role in the research process and to experience directly how psychological research is performed
