Course Description:

POL2293F will introduce students to the key theoretical frameworks, concepts, and debates within the study of genocide and other mass atrocities (including famine and ethnic cleansing). The course will begin with a conceptual and historical overview of genocide, as well as an examination of the definition of genocide provided by the United Nations 1948 Genocide Convention. We will then move on to consider some of the most profound cases of genocide and mass violence over the past century (approximately), starting with the Armenian genocide, and ending with the Rohingya genocide. Each week will focus in-depth on one key case study. Through the lectures, readings, and class discussions we will examine: (1) the background, causes, and effects of the particular genocide, and (2) the international community's involvement (or rather in most cases, lack thereof). We will consider throughout the course the paradox regarding increasing awareness of genocide, yet relative lack of improvement in prevention and responses.

Learning Outcomes: one outcome per entry
